

HOWARD COLLEGE WORKFORCE TRAINING COURSE OFFERING

INTEGRITY, ETHICS, AND LEADERSHIP IN THE WORKPLACE COURSE DESCRIPTION

One of the greatest training needs currently facing public and private organizations is the need for sound and effective integrity, ethics, and leadership training. More employees are lost each year due to “integrity and ethics breakdowns” than by other means. These, usually, self-inflicted acts that lead to personal and professional derailment often generate intense media attention that not only negatively impact the employee, family members, organizations, and the communities that they serve. “Integrity, Ethics, and Leadership in the Workplace” is not a ‘touchy-feel good’ course, but rather a powerful one-day training seminar that gets right to the heart of the culture in public and private organizations, the real life integrity issues and ethical dilemmas that working professionals at all levels face on a daily basis, and throughout their career.

The instructor’s unique way of taking unpopular, controversial, boring and often complex subjects and presenting them so that participants can easily listen, understand and immediately integrate proven principles, makes this course very effective and career enhancing.
